

Guidelines for the acceptance of an enforceable undertaking

*Work Health and Safety Act
2011 Electrical Safety Act 2002
Safety in Recreational Water Activities Act 2011*

This document outlines general guidelines in relation to the acceptance of the following:

1. Workplace health and safety undertakings under the Work Health and Safety Act 2011 (WHS Act)
2. Electrical safety undertakings under the Electrical Safety Act 2002 (ES Act)
3. Recreational water activities health and safety undertakings under the Safety in Recreational Water Activities Act 2011 (SRWA Act).

Within this document:

- Workplace health and safety undertakings, electrical safety undertakings and recreational water activities health and safety undertakings are collectively referred to as an undertaking or enforceable undertaking (EU).
- The WHS Act, ES Act and SRWA Act are collectively referred to as the safety Acts.
- A reference to a contravention includes an alleged contravention.

This document is published in accordance with section 230(3)(b) of the WHS Act and section 186(4)(b) of the ES Act.

Dated this 22nd day of November 2017

Dr Simon Blackwood

Deputy Director-General (regulator appointed for the purposes of the safety Acts)
Office of Industrial Relations

Preamble

Enforceable Undertakings (EU) are high level sanctions for contraventions of the safety Acts.

EUs are prescribed under the safety Acts and governed by provisions of those Acts.

An undertaking cannot be accepted as an EU for a contravention that involves a fatality that occurs on or after 23 October 2017 or is a category 1 offence (as defined in the safety Acts).

The regulator, under the safety Acts is the person occupying the position of Deputy Director-General, Office of Industrial Relations (OIR).

The regulator is the only person who can accept an undertaking. Once accepted, the undertaking becomes an EU. The regulator or a delegate of the regulator can allow an EU to be withdrawn or varied, by agreement.

An EU is a written, legally-binding commitment to implement effective health and safety initiatives that are designed to deliver tangible benefits for workers, industry, and the community as a whole.

An EU operates as an alternative to a court imposed sanction for a contravention, without the recording of a conviction or a finding of guilt against the person. Details of an EU may however form part of the work health and safety compliance record of a person.

An EU does not constitute an admission of guilt by the person giving an undertaking in relation to the contravention.

Court proceedings cannot be brought against a person for the contravention to which an EU relates if it is in effect and is being complied with or has been completely discharged. However, it is an offence for a person to contravene (not comply with) an EU.

Most undertakings are given after a legal proceeding (also called a prosecution) for the offence has been commenced. If an undertaking is accepted as an EU after a prosecution has been commenced the proceedings will be discontinued. However, a person may give an undertaking in relation to the contravention irrespective of whether a legal proceeding has been commenced for the contravention.

Once a decision has been made by the regulator, the relevant person will be given written notice and the reasons for the decision.

If the undertaking is not accepted by the regulator, or the undertaking is withdrawn by the person prior to the regulator making a decision, legal proceedings for the contravention will continue.

The regulator will publish the EU and the reasons for decision on the regulator's website as is required by law.

This document sets out the regulator's general guidelines for the acceptance of an EU in order to promote openness and transparency about prosecutions and the EU acceptance process.

General exclusions

1. The regulator considers that EUs will usually not be appropriate where any of the following circumstances exist:
 - Fatalities – the contravention is connected to the death of a person, whether or not the contravention can be said to have caused the death. Where the fatality occurs on or after 23 October 2017 an EU cannot be accepted.
 - Very serious injury – the contravention is connected to a person sustaining a very serious injury, whether or not the contravention can be said to have caused the very serious injury.
 - Recent criminal history:
 - the person giving an undertaking has a recent prior conviction or finding of guilt against the safety Acts which was connected to the death of a person, whether or not the prior matter is said to have caused the death, unless the prior matter was more than five years prior to the contravention the subject of the undertaking; or
 - the person giving the undertaking has more than two recent prior convictions or findings of guilt against the safety Acts arising from separate investigations, unless the last prior matter concluded more than five years prior to the contravention subject to the undertaking.

Very serious injury – for these guidelines, is an injury that has caused nervous system damage liable to lead to mental incapacity or permanent restriction of mobility or involves a major amputation of a limb or parts of the body – for example amputation above the knee or elbow.

Preliminary process for matters within General exclusions

1. This process is in place to save the person giving the undertaking from unnecessary investment into an undertaking which falls into one of the general exclusion areas and therefore could be rejected by the regulator.
2. If the contravention to which the undertaking relates falls into any of the categories of general exclusion, the person giving the undertaking will be informed in writing of the relevant category of general exclusion applicable to the undertaking. The person giving the undertaking will be provided the opportunity to address those issues and demonstrate that there are exceptional circumstances that apply to the case such that the undertaking should be accepted. The submission from the person giving the undertaking should identify any exceptional circumstances that clearly demonstrate why the EU would be a more appropriate enforcement option than a prosecution of the contravention.
3. If the regulator is not satisfied that exceptional circumstances have been demonstrated the person giving the undertaking will be advised of that decision, with reasons.
4. The regulator may decide not to reject the undertaking after consideration of the submission and the process will continue.

Guidelines for acceptance

1. To allow for the timely development and effective monitoring of an EU, it needs to be in a written format that covers essential details of both a procedural and substantive nature. Details of the types of procedural matters the regulator requires are shown within the EU template at Annexure A and the OIR EU Program Timeframes/Service Standards at Annexure B.
2. Where an undertaking being given is an alternative to prosecution, the quantum or effect of the undertaking must be commensurate with, and also account for, the benefits that accrue to the applicant due to the prosecution being discontinued. The benefits of avoiding court proceedings, including obviating a possible recorded conviction and other sentencing outcomes, must be reflected in the quantum or effect of the undertaking, that is, those non-tangible benefits of avoiding prosecution must be reflected in the tangible benefits required as part of the undertaking.
3. All persons are obliged to comply with their duties under the safety Acts. Therefore, any term of an EU that merely represents ordinary expected compliance with the safety Acts cannot be considered for the purposes of an EU.
4. For an undertaking to be accepted, the regulator requires terms that promote the objects or purposes of the safety Acts for the benefit of one or more of the following:
 - a. the workers and/or workplace
 - b. industry
 - c. community.
5. The regulator also requires a person giving an undertaking to have an Occupational Health and Safety Management System (OHSMS) acceptable to the regulator in place or alternatively commit to implementing one as part of the terms of an undertaking. This must include third party auditing of the OHSMS that is acceptable to the regulator.
6. When deciding whether to accept an undertaking, the regulator will consider a number of factors, including:
 - a. the objective gravity of the contravention and the nature of the applicant's alleged misconduct (the greater the gravity of the contravention, the less likely the undertaking being given will be accepted)
 - b. meeting timeframe expectations set out in Annexure B, OIR EU Program Timeframes/Service Standards
 - c. submissions received from any relevant party, including any injured worker/s or next of kin, in relation to the contravention
 - d. the person's conduct in respect of mitigation and remedial action, regarding both the contravention and any person effected by the contravention
 - e. the applicant's past performance and history of compliance with the safety Acts, including the management of workers' compensation
 - f. any other matter which the regulator considers relevant.

Further information

The OIR EU Unit offers an advisory service to a person giving an undertaking. The advisory service is considered by OIR as being beneficial as it allows the person giving the undertaking to better determine if an EU is a feasible and appropriate alternative to prosecution for a contravention of the safety Acts.

The advisory service can also provide a person giving an undertaking the opportunity to liaise directly with relevant business areas within OIR and/or external bodies to develop particular aspects of the undertaking. All communication with the advisory service is on a without prejudice basis and will be conducted directly with the person or giving an undertaking or the person's legal representatives, if preferred.

Any decision made regarding the acceptance of an EU rests solely with the regulator. To reach a decision the regulator will independently exercise decision making powers under the safety Acts.

For further information regarding EUs or to access the advisory service, please contact the EU Unit at enforceableundertaking@oir.qld.gov.au.
